

Towards the Creation of Rich Environments for Active Learning

An RSVP Design Workshop

A practical workshop to introduce you to techniques and methods of experiential learning and to experience at first hand the potential of using RSVP Design's learning tools and resources.

Workshop Objectives

This active workshop is intended to:

1. Introduce participants to the thinking behind the design and application of practical learning activities
2. Motivate managers, trainers and HR specialists to involve learners in challenging and creative learning experiences
3. Build confidence in facilitating learning discussions and linking the learning back to the workplace

During the workshop we will consider different types of training and development activity within your organisations and the needs of different learners.

We will experiment with a range of RSVP Design learning tools and explore how they might be used in different training and development contexts.

The workshop will be practical and interactive as participants share prior experiences and integrate new ideas and suggestions from the RSVP Design team.
